This timeline looks at events that have made an impact on the recognition of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

1770 Captain Cook enters Botany Bay on the Endeavour. The British Government does not recognise the rights of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and their special connection with the land. Instead, they claim the land for the British Crown and declare that Australia is terra nullius – land belonging to nobody.

1788 The First Fleet arrives and builds a settlement at Port Jackson in Sydney, New South Wales.

1901 The Commonwealth of Australia is formed.

1948 The Commonwealth Nationality and Citizenship Act gives the category of ‘Australian Citizenship’ to all Australians, including Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, for the first time. However, at a state government level Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples still suffer legal discrimination.

1962 The Commonwealth Electoral Act is amended to give the vote to all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples at Federal elections.

1967 On May 27, more than 90 per cent of Australians vote ‘Yes’ in a referendum to give the Australian Government the power to make laws for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

1975 The Australian Parliament passes the Racial Discrimination Act to help ensure that Australians of all backgrounds are treated equally and receive the same opportunities.
1976  Patricia (Pat) O’Shane becomes Australia’s first Aboriginal barrister.

1985  Uluru is handed back to its traditional owners.

1991  The Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody presents its final report into the deaths of 99 Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in Australian jails.

1988  The Barunga Statement, calling for rights for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, is presented to Prime Minister Bob Hawke.

1992  February: The Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation holds its first meeting in Canberra.

           June: The High Court hands down the Mabo decision, recognising the special relationship that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have with the land. The Court rules that Australia was never terra nullius.

           September: The first National Week of Prayer for Reconciliation is supported by Australia’s major faith communities.

1996  Following on from the National Week of Prayer for Reconciliation, the Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation launches Australia’s first National Reconciliation Week.

1997  The Bringing them Home Report on Australia’s Stolen Generations is launched at the National Reconciliation Conference.
